 US Senate candidate, AL

Delete your account Jeff. This came out of a Republican controlled Senate committee on a strong bi-partisan vote. I know it's tough for you to be on the right side of history when it comes to the Confederacy, but you should give it a try. twitter.com/jeffsessions/s...

This was organized and led by Indigenous people.

Columbus literally started a genocide against them.

What a sick thing to say about those taking down monuments to their own oppression.

I've been back on Twitter for only a few months. My two most controversial tweets so far were when I condemned our president* for telling us to swallow Lysol and tonight when I said the NFL should apologize to @Kaepernick7...what does that say?

Absolutely bizarre. The Bexar County GOP chair concludes this rally by stating that the coronavirus is a hoax perpetuated by Democrats, tells people to take off their masks, and then everyone hugs each other.

General Motors sold Lordstown. If the President cared about its former workers, he would know that.

Instead of throwing a tantrum on Twitter, why don't you just invoke the DPA?

Donald J. Trump ✓ @realDonaldTrump · Mar 27

General Motors MUST immediately open their stupidly abandoned Lordstown plant in Ohio, or some other plant, and START MAKING VENTILATORS, NOW!!!!!! FORD, GET GOING ON VENTILATORS, FAST!!!!!! @GeneralMotors @Ford

We fought for a better bill for YOU, & I'm proud to say we got one. It is not perfect but it does so much more for our healthcare, workers, state & local gov'ts than the McConnell bill filed last weekend. But no bill can stop the spread of this virus. That's up to each of us.

Senator Doug Jones ✓ @SenDougJones · Mar 25

Tonight, the Senate came together to pass a much stronger, bipartisan bill that will get more money to working folks, small businesses, and our health care workers on the front lines—but this won't be our last step.

In the meantime, take care of yourselves & each other, folks.

The outgoing Obama team gave the Trump team a pandemic playbook. If they'd followed it, the guidance questions would have led them, for instance, to stockpile masks & gowns, critical equipment now in short supply. But they ignored that guidance.

President Trump has said that more than 50,000 people could die from the flu. In reality, there have been about 23,000 deaths from the flu during the 2019-2020 season, according to the CDC.

Harvard might have done lasting damage to the world by letting Jared Kushner's family buy him a spot in the school.

He's too dumb to realize that he's not smart enough to get in on his own, and now thinks he's an expert at everything.

Throughout the crisis, Kushner has counseled Trump that the crisis isn't as bad as the media is portraying. Two sources said Vice President Mike Pence has complained to Trump about Kushner's meddling in the work of the coronavirus task force. (Another former West Wing official disputed this, saying Pence wouldn't openly challenge the Trump family. "Pence is politically smart," the former official said.)

So good to see that Republicans will be winning the Great State of Alabama Senate Seat back, now that lightweight Senator @DougJones cast a partisan vote for the Impeachment Hoax. Thought his boss, Cryin' Chuck, would have forced him to vote against the Hoax. A Do Nothing Stiff!
